The happy future state of England: or, a discourse by way of letter to the late Earl of Anglesey, vindicating him from the reflections of an affidavit published by the House of commons, A^o 1680. by occasion whereof observations are made concerning infamous witnesses. he said discourse likewise contains various political remarks and calculations referring to many parts of Christendom; with observations of the number of people of England, and of its growth in populousness and trade.
London. 1688

General

The vanity of the late fears and jealousies being shewn, the author doth on grounds of nature predict the happy future state of the realm. At the end of the discourse, there is a casuistical discussion of the obligation to the King, his heirs and successors, wherein many of the moral offices of absolute and unconditional loyalty are asserted. Before the discourse, is a large preface, giving an account of the whole work, with an index of the principal matters. Also, the obligation resulting from the oath of supremacy to assist and defend the preheminance or prerogative of the dispensative power belonging to the King, his heirs and successors; [106], 364, [6], 144, [1] p.; GK entry number 02679.

The exorbitant grants of William the III. Examin'd and question'd.
London. 1703
Agriculture
Shewing the nature of grants in successive and elective monarchies; and proving by law and history, that crown-lands are inalienable, that resumptions were common all of the world over; and likewise shewing, that where a prince hath no hereditary title, he can make no hereditary right. And that kings set up by Parliament can dispose of no lands but with the consent of Parliament, which renders William the third's grants totally void; [4], 28 p. 4°.; GK entry number 03957.
